She outlined her responsibility as the Talbot County Health Officer to notify the Board of Health, county leaders and the community when, in her opinion, there is a health threat, and to make recommendations for dealing with the threat. Dr. Wadley acknowledged that there is disagreement among citizens about the level of threat COVID-19 poses to the population (younger versus older), about strategies for dealing with COVID-19 in light of the fact that no vaccine is currently available, and stated that, in her opinion, social distancing, wearing a mask, and good hand hygiene are the best strategies now available to help combat the pandemic. She provided statistical information on the number of COVID-19 cases per day in the country, Maryland, and Talbot County, all of which continue to increase, stating that the number of cases in Talbot County has increased from 111 to 262 over the past three weeks, and that the county has had 5 COVID-related deaths. She stated that although the death rate is currently not going up in Talbot County, it is in Maryland and across the nation and she discussed various matters related to an uptick in the number of overall cases, including supply of hospital beds, staffing, sufficient Personal Protective Equipment (PPE), long-term effects of the Coronavirus on the health of those who contract the disease, and testing. She stated that hospitalizations lag behind the number of cases and deaths lag behind hospitalizations. She spoke of a letter forwarded to local officials by Governor Hogan within the last week expressing concern that citizens were not taking the precautions outlined in his most recent Executive Order seriously, particularly with regard to bars and restaurants. She discussed the various approaches taken by governors across the country with regard to the reopening of their states during the pandemic and stated that, in her opinion, federal, State, and local coordination of efforts is needed to effectively combat the virus and outlined her authority as Health Officer with regard to non-compliant businesses. Council discussion ensued with Dr. Wadley and Clay Stamp, Director, Department of Emergency Services, regarding enforcement of the size of group gatherings as permitted under the Governor’s Executive Order, and civil penalties.
